

Statice

Very drought tolerant and great for cutflowers!

Goniolimon collinum 'Sea Spray'

- Use: This species of Statice was just recently introduced to gardens from the Balkan region of eastern Europe. It forms a low mound of paddle shaped blue-green leaves, then in late summer develops loose branching sprays of tiny white flowers that are excellent for cutting. Perfect near the front of a sunny border, in containers or in a large rock garden.
- Exposure/Soil: Full to part sun. Prefers well-drained soil. Drought tolerant once established. Almost un-killable; they're drought resistant, rabbit-proof, survive well in an exposed area and the reward is endless displays of beautiful white blooms.
- Growth:
- Hardiness: Zone 5-10; Perennial
- Foliage: Semi-evergreen; Lovely basal leaves of light bluish-green
- Flower: Sprays of tiny white flowers, which dry slowly whilst on the plant, so prove very long-lasting.
