

Fragrant Purple Garden Phlox

Fragrant,
Great for Bouquets, and
Attracts Butterflies and Hummingbirds

Phlox paniculata 'Nicky'

- Use: 'Nicky' is a fragrant garden Phlox with striking magenta-purple blooms that appear in mid-summer, attracting butterflies to its sweet scent. Tightly-clustered flowers, reminiscent of hydrangea blooms, are perfect for bouquets. Full, deep-green foliage and strong stems support the large flower heads.
- Exposure/Soil: Prefers full sun to part sun. Water when top 3" of soil is dry. Does not like sprinklers, water soil not leaves.
- Growth: Fast growth of 3' tall and 2' wide.
- Hardiness: Zone 4-8; Perennial.
- Foliage: Deciduous; Light green mildew resistant foliage.
- Flower: This garden phlox is one of the most richly-colored varieties available. Its plum-pink blossoms bring a welcome burst of color to summer gardens. Nicky is a strong grower with large flowerheads. Great paired with pastel pinks and a showstopper with purple and orange.
