Azalea 'Pride of Mobile' (Southern indica type)

- Use: This is one of the most widely planted azaleas in the South. Its rich rose-pink (some people say watermelon-red), three inch flowers, dark green foliage, and relative ease of growing make it a favorite azalea for southern gardens. It is a mid season bloomer. Its habit of growth is somewhat upright and pruning may be necessary periodically to keep the size manageable.
- Exposure/Soil: Prefers part shade. Moist, well-drained soil, but not soggy.
- Growth: Upright growth to a height of 8 to 12 feet tall and 10-15 feet wide. Moderate to fast growth.
- Hardiness: Zone 7-9; shrub
- Foliage: Evergreen; Large dark green leaves.
- Flower: Large deep watermelon pink blossoms are 2-3" wide.
