

Albo Pothos

This plant filters pollutants from the air while releasing oxygen. With this plant in your home, you breathe cleaner air.

The Pothos Albo is a rare, easy-care houseplant with marbled variegation. Perfect for beginners and collectors, it trails gracefully or climbs.

Epipremnum pinnatum 'Albo -Variegata'

- Use: If you love variegated climbing (or trailing) houseplants that are easy to grow, Albo Pothos may be for you! Its elongated medium green leaves are variegated with streaks, splashes, and blotches of white. As the plant matures, if it's allowed to grow vertically up a support, the leaves will become much larger and form fenestrations, or window-like cuts and holes in the leaves. At first, these holes are small and appear in a line along the midrib (and can look like insect or other damage). But as future leaves grow, the fenestrations become more pronounced.
- Exposure/Soil: Can tolerate low light conditions, but will cause the variegation to fade. They do best in filtered light, although a little morning sun is permissible. Water regularly, when top 3 in. of soil is dry, but take care not to overwater. Use slow release fertilizer for best results. Sensitive to overwatering. Ensure the top couple of inches of the potting mix dries to the touch before you water it. The leaves may turn yellow and drop prematurely if it dries out too much or is overwatered.
- Growth: Can climb to 6 feet or more, and if you grow it up vertically, the leaves can get more than 18 inches long. Make excellent hanging plants, but they will never reach their full potential unless they are allowed to climb upright on a totem pole. Totems give the plant's air roots something to attach to for support.
- Hardiness: Zone 10-12, Annual, Houseplant, Bring indoors below 60 degrees.
- Foliage: Glossy green leaves splashed with brilliant white and cream variegation. Juvenile leaves are narrow and lance-shaped, but mature leaves develop dramatic splits and holes (fenestrations) if given a moss pole or trellis to climb.
- Flower: No flowers.
