Excellent as alpine plants for a rockery or trough, use them spilling over low walls, as a path edging or green roof.

Saxifraga x arendsii "Touran Series"

- Use: These evergreen, cushion-forming perennials are compact, free-flowering, and early spring bloomers. Plants quickly form a verdant mat. They have become a popular rockery plants because they are so adaptable. In an Alpine rockery setting, this easy, pleasant and reliable little fill-in is interesting for its own sake and especially good for its mossiness in breaking up the texture of a rock garden that could otherwise be too reliant on sedums. Grow these charming perennials in partial sun and moist, well-drained soil.
- Exposure/Soil: Part sun to light shade. Prefers moist, rich soil. (Please amend the red clay thoroughly!)
- Growth: Grows 4-8" tall and 6-10" tall.
- Hardiness: Zone 6-9; Perennial.
- Foliage: Evergreen. The surface-spreading mossy leaves are known for year-round effect.
- Flower: Available in multiple colors from white to soft pink to hot pink. Blossoms spring to summer.
