

Dark Lavender Chiffon Rose of Sharon

Late season color for hedges, perennial or shrub borders, specimen and containers. This is a nice addition to the mixed border, and can also be used as a specimen plant for late summer interest. Excellent for hedging.

Hibiscus (Althea) syriacus 'Dark Lavender Chiffon'

- Use: The newest member of the incredible CHIFFON® rose of Sharon series! Honestly, we just got lucky with this one. It was growing by its parent Lavender CHIFFON® and since then it has proved it's out and out a richer color. Gardeners who prefer a luscious, rich colored flower will be happy to see Dark Lavender CHIFFON® as a hedge, specimen, or within a border. Bold yet delicate, it is a star in the garden from late summer to fall. The distinctive flower color complements many popular late summer perennials.
 - Exposure/Soil: Grow in full sun in ordinary soil. To increase bloom and to shape, prune to 2 buds per branch when dormant. Prefers to be watered under the leaves.
 - Growth: Grows 8-12' tall and 6-10' wide.
 - Hardiness: Zone 5-9 Shrub/ Small Tree. Very heat tolerant!
 - Foliage: Deciduous; Medium green maple-like leaves.
- Flower: Darker, more impressive purple blooms than the original Lavender CHIFFON®. Produces few to no seeds. Blooms last a long time through summer.
