

Opening Day Viburnum

With a name derived from baseball-size white flower clusters that appear in spring, and with a pedigree that began with its selection by shrub expert and author Michael Dirr, this compact, tidy grower is clearly a home run.

Viburnum plicatum 'Opening Day'

- Use: Compact plants are covered with, baseball size, snowball-like flowers that open with a tinge of green and quickly mature to pure white. Plants are tight in habit with dark green foliage that turns beautiful shades of cabernet in the fall.
- Exposure/Soil: Full to part sun. Requires well-drained soil and good moisture. Needs extra water during a drought.
- Growth: Reaches 5-10 ft. tall and 5-8 ft. wide.
- Hardiness: Zone 5-8; Shrub
- Foliage: Deciduous; Green pleated leaves turn from dark green to burgundy red in fall.
- Flower: Spring's dazzling flower show begins with greenish white flowers that mature to white.
